

WOODS GO TO THE DOGS

by David Phillips

Recently, when looking at my Alaska woods collection, I realized there were several Alaska woods on which there were dogs depicted in connection with the name of the establishment.

FOX: Howling Dog Saloon,
Good for one free drink.

JUNEAU: Red Dog Saloon,
Good for one drink. A Scottie???

NAKNEK: Red Dog Saloon,
Good for a drink. Even worse,
a Dachshund!!!!

TOK: Young's Husky
Lounge, Good for one drink.

WASILLA: Lucky Lisa's
Dead Dog Saloon, We do it doggy style, An Alaskan Tradition. Mile 49 Parks Hwy,
Good for one premium drink.
Looks like a bull dog!

EDITOR'S COMMENTS

I would like to apologize for the tardiness of this issue. With all that has been going on, I am sure that you will overlook this lapse. I am calling this issue "June" and hope to get back on track in the next couple months.

I would like to thank all those who sent condolences and donations to the Georgeson Botanical Garden. Jan and I are totally overwhelmed. We are still working on the picnic shelter. The main task right now is building a retaining wall. When it is completed, I will run photos in the newsletter.

After the funeral, we had to put mom in a nursing home. Doctors have been telling us for two years that she could not live at home, and we feel they were finally right. She is adjusting, and as a result, I will be traveling to Mass. very frequently to take care of miscellaneous chores, and to break mom out and blow the stink off (old family expression).

There were a couple of impressive prices on eBay. Check the column to the right. Two unlisted tokens only brought modest prices. And one seller was shooting for the moon with a $3,500 opening bid for Dawson token only worth $100 to $150!

Thanks to Dave Phillips, Kurtis Hawk, Ken Rieck and Jim Robb for submitting items for this issue.

25th ANNIVERSARY OF LIBERATION

Twenty-five years ago, Argentina invaded the Falkland, South Georgia and South Sandwich Islands. Both the Falkland Islands and SG&SS Islands have issued commemorative coins to note the subsequent liberation of the islands.

Argentina invaded South Georgia on March 25, and the Falklands on April 2. The British sent a flotilla and ground forces to liberate the islands. South Georgia was liberated on April 26. Argentine forces in the Falklands surrendered on June 14.

The 50 pence coin features a back view of a soldier superimposed on a map of the Falklands, shown actual size.

Three 1 Crown coins have also been issued, featuring: a) the Armed Services, b) Britannia superimposed on a map of the Falklands, and c) a Vulcan bomber. These are available in 1/5 oz. gold, and "crown" size sterling silver and cupronickel. Illustrations are reduced.

The single design from South Georgia and South Sandwich Islands features a Royal Marine raising the White Ensign at Grytviken, with HMS Plymouth in the background. This crown size coin (illustration reduced) is available in sterling silver and cupronickel.

These coins and those from Falkland Islands and South

Georgia & South Sandwich Islands issued for the International Polar Year are available from Pobjoy Mint. Their website is www.pobjoy.com/usa.

And while not celebrating the 25th anniversary of liberation, two Argentine medals relating to the Falklands war have appeared on eBay recently.

The first notes the "recovery" of the Malvinas (Falklands). It is silver colored, 60mm (illustration reduced). It is a neat medal with the a map of the Falklands, South Georgia and South Sandwich Islands superimposed on the Argentine flag.

The second medal memorializes the sinking of the General Belgrano. It is bronze, 60mm (illustration reduced).

Finally, a uniface bronze medal, 36mm, noting the invasion of the Malvinas (Falklands).

INTERNATIONAL POLAR YEAR

More countries are commemorating the International Polar Year with coins.

The ones that your editor find most interesting come from Denmark. They are issued in 10 Kroner (aluminum bronze, mintage unlimited), 100 Kroner (silver, mintage 50,000) and 1,000 Kroner (gold, mintage 6,000). All bear an unflattering portrait of Queen Margrethe II on the obverse and a walking polar bear on the reverse, designed by Niels Motzfeldt.

What makes this most interesting is that the gold in the 1,000 Kroner coin comes from the Nalunaq gold mine in Greenland. This is noted by a very small polar bear hallmark at about 4:00 reverse.

The gold coin is 90% pure and weighs 8.65 grams, containing 1/4 ounce of pure gold.

Canada is also noting the International Polar year, with a $20 silver coin. It features Martin Frobisher, an Inuit in kayak, a polar bear, a sailing ship and an iceberg. A compass rose is in the center. This coin is available in silver, and silver with a "plasma finish."

Also joining the list of countries issuing coins for the IPY are the Falkland Islands and South Georgia & South Sandwich Islands.

The Falklands have issued two Crown coins, available in gold, silver and cupronickel. One honors Amundsen and Scott, while the other features Scott's ship Discovery. The denomination of "Crown" is odd in that it does not fit into the decimal system.

The South Georgia & South Sandwich Islands coins honor Ernest Shackleton and his failed Trans-Antarctic Expedition. This became one of the most famous and inspiring stories of survival. These coins are available in gold, silver and cupronickel

Both the Falkland Islands and SG&SS Islands coins are shown smaller than actual size. Sadly, both of these countries have embarked on a grossly exaggerated coin issuing program. While these coins have relevance to the Falklands and SG&SS, many commemoratives have been issued with little real connection to the islands.
